

SUBSTITUTE ABSTRACT

A security container includes at least one basic module, at least one floor element, at least one ceiling element, side wall elements, and one end piece. The side wall element and end piece are mounted between the floor element and the ceiling element at the basic module, and the basic module is attached to one door section equipped with a lock device in connection to an end piece and/or side wall elements.